

YAGUI WAR WANES.

Renegades Believed to be the Cause of the Trouble.

Col. A. H. Moore of New York, part owner of mines at Bonancita, 40 miles east of Ortiz and near the Yaqui river, returned to Nogales yesterday from his property, which lies 30 miles east of the Yaqui reservation.

In conversation with the representative of THE VISITOR, Col. Moore said: "I find no indications of Yaqui depredations in any of the region I passed through, nor did I hear of any in that region. Naturally the people in that district are alarmed and many women have been sent from the settlements and haciendas to places of safety as a matter of precaution. When I left Ortiz for Bonancita last Saturday with our superintendent, Johnson, I did not know what I might encounter and I took a Yaqui guide with me. When I arrived at the camp I found everything safe. Going and coming I met Yaquis and through the guide secured information that leads me to believe that nothing serious will result from the trouble. The Indians told me it is not a war of the tribe, but rather a gathering of Indian and Mexican renegades, whose actions are condemned by all their tribesmen of the better class. As a matter of fact my conclusion is that this trouble means no more to Sonora or Mexico than an overindulgence in firewater does among our own Indians. This band of renegades began their annual pascoli on San Juan's day, June 24, and the dance and carousal that follows is only limited by the supply of rations and mescal. They probably wrought themselves into conditions of drunken frenzy as Uncle Sam's reds frequently do, and I believe that Jack Remley and Charley Miller encountered or passed near one of these pascolis, were mistaken for Mexican scouts and shot. I do not believe these renegades will leave the reservation, nor do I believe that any Americans are in the slightest danger. If the entire fighting strength of the tribe were on the war-path, I would say the danger is great, but such does not seem to be the condition. I feel safe so far as my property is concerned, for I have confidence in the ability of the Mexican troops to care for the renegades, and I believe they will or already have paid reparation for the murder of Remley and Miller."

Miss Remley, of Kansas City, sister of one of the victims of the Indians is now in Hermosillo, ministering to his bereaved wife and five young children. Jack Remley was one of nature's noblemen. He was born in Green county, Pennsylvania, 40 years ago, and was taken in his youth by his parents to Kansas. Nearly 14 years ago he came to Nogales and entered the service of Wells-Fargo as express messenger. Later he was promoted to the position of agent at Hermosillo, a position he held until four years ago, when he resigned to enable him to give his attention to his private interests.

If ever an American was in need in Hermosillo he found a friend in Jack Remley. He has given away without hope of requital not less than $15,000 in this manner. Manly, kindly, truthful and always true, he commanded a wide influence in Hermosillo and Sonora. But for him one large firm in Hermosillo would have gone down in the maelstrom of competition long ago; he alleviated suffering where he found it regardless of cause. The passing of a man like Jack Remley is apt to recall to one the responsibilities of life; and, withal, the Bramin orthodoxy of the immortality of the soul on the line that human influence lives forever; its inertia is never lost.

A. Miller, was also a man whose life was a synonym for honor and rectitude. His friends throughout Arizona and Sonora were legion. He was a man among men.

KRUTTSCHNITT IS FOR NOGALES

General Manager of the Southern Pacific in Town.

General Manager Kruttschnitt of the Southern Pacific company arrived in town this morning in his executive car, accompanied by General Manager J. A. Nangle of the Sonora line. Mr. Kruttschnitt is enroute on a tour of inspection of the road. While here he held a conference with officials of the company and business men concerning matters of importance to Nogales. During the conference he expressed sentiments of liberality concerning the policy of the company in its relation to Nogales' interests that are exceedingly encouraging.

With reference to the extension of the road from Guaymas to Sinaloa, he said the matter will be taken up and that the directory may arrive at a definite decision this fall. The extension is desired, and it was inferred from the conversation that if certain obstacles are removed the road will be built. He expressed deep interest in Nogales and said it is his opinion that the town along with Southern Arizona and Sonora, has a great future.

When asked concerning the intentions of the company with reference to the physical condition of the Sonora road and probable improvements, Mr. Kruttschnitt said that large sums have been expended during the present year on maintenance of way account and that the intention is to continue the work until the road is in every respect up to the standard.

Big contract for Nogales firm

Contracts for an improvement to cost $200,000 gold, will be closed probably next week. The work comprehends a water system for the mills at Minas Prietas and La Colorada, Sonora, and includes a pipe line 16 miles long, of 6, 7 and 8 inch pipe, adequate pumping machinery and the construction of a new reservoir. The source of supply is a tributary of the Yaqui river, 16 miles from the mills. The water will be used jointly by the Creston, Colorado, and the Grand central companies. It is understood that the major portion of this contract is practically let to Roy & Titcomb, agents in this territory for the National Tube Works Company. Adolph Weidmann, representing the St. Louis offices of the company, and Stephen Hall hydraulic engineer, one of the National experts, are now in Nogales having arrived from Minas Prietas a few days since. They have, with representatives of Roy Titcomb completed the work that took them to the great mining camp and are only waiting the formal announcement of the closing of the contract.

George Crocker's Gift to Nogales.

George Crocker, second vice president of the Southern Pacific company has presented to the employees of the Sonora road a library of 550 volumes of standard works that have recently been placed on the shelves of the library in the station building. With the nucleus previously collected through the efforts of Messrs. Zeimet, Montague, Gibson, Bristol, and other local officials of the road, Mr. Crocker's donation completes the beginning of an institution that it will be the pleasure of every one in Nogales to assist. The labels on Mr. Crocker's donation, placed on the inside cover of each volume reads:

PRESENTED TO
RAILWAY EMPLOYEES LIBRARY
OF NOGALES BY

GEORGE CROCKER.
By voluntary subscription, many of the leading periodicals of the country are on file, and others will be added as fast as facilities become available.

Johnsons Win at Last.

Julian Johnson, and his son Carlos, are on the eve of realizing the dreams of their lives. They are about to make a contract of sale of their San Marcial coal claims to a syndicate of Philadelphia people represented by E. V. B. Hoes. Mr. Hoes passed through Nogales yesterday en route to San Marcial and in the interval of his stay in Nogales he said his company has practically decided to close the deal with Johnson. The price is a matter that Mr. Hoes avoided; but in view of information from other sources it is fair to say that $1,500,000 will approximate the extent of the deal.

If the Johnsons accept Mr. Hoes's proposition, a railroad from Ortiz to San Marcial is assured and that means a new era for the Bonancita-Soyopa county. It is a delightful resort for ice cream and refreshments. Mrs. Hanson is in charge, and the parlor at Morley avenue and International street is a mecca for rest; cream is fresh each day.

The War Correspondent.

El Tráfico de Guaymas is disposed to treat the enterprise of American newspapers in sending correspondents to the Yaqui trouble with derision. In a rare bit of latin wit, the editor on the first page has this to say of a man whom we know to be as full of courage and as good a shot as Lou Friend or any other man who ever looked over a gun barrel.

"A reporter of some Los Angeles paper hit the trail leading in the direction of the Yaqui river with the intention of sending back telegrams from the theatre of war. He got as far as Cruz de Piedra (ten leagues away) and no further. 'Oh, I have a bad sunstroke; my stomach is sick and my head is bad. I think I may die. I don't care for the Yaquis; Guaymas is good enough for me.' The editor makes the correspondent say.

The editor of El Tráfico may become better acquainted with the city editor of the Los Angeles Times.
